DETAILED ACTION

Last Action Vacated

The Action mailed 03 March 2006 included a typographical error in the Double Patenting rejection. Therefore, the previous action has been vacated in lieu of the following corrected action. The Shortened Statutory Period for response is hereby restarted upon mailing of this action.

Double Patenting

A rejection based on double patenting of the "same invention" type finds its support in the language of 35 U.S.C. 101 which states that "whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process ... may obtain a patent therefor ..." (Emphasis added). Thus, the term "same invention," in this context, means an invention drawn to identical subject matter. See Miller v. Eagle Mfg. Co., 151 U.S. 186 (1894); In re Ockert, 245 F.2d 467, 114 USPQ 330 (CCPA 1957); and In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970).

A statutory type (35 U.S.C. 101) double patenting rejection can be overcome by canceling or amending the conflicting claims so they are no longer coextensive in scope. The filing of a terminal disclaimer cannot overcome a double patenting rejection based upon 35 U.S.C. 101.

Claims 1-20 are provisionally rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 as claiming the same invention as that of claims 1-20 of copending Application No. 10/640,981. This is a provisional double patenting rejection since the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 1, lines 15-16, it is deemed misdescriptive to claim that the “output signal” controls the “processor device” only “during startup”. While similar phraseology is used in the specification, the specification clearly established that the “output signal” Vout prevents the “processor device” from operating during “startup” and allows it to operate normally thereafter (see the paragraph linking pages 5-6 of the specification). As seen, the “output signal” is always controlling the “processor”.

Claims 2-8 are rejected as including the indefiniteness discussed above with claim 1.

Claims 9-20 are rejected for similar reasons as claims 1-8.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nagano (USPN 4,754,166).

With respect to claims 1-16, the reference to Nagano discloses, in Fig. 1, a circuit comprising: “a first signal-treating circuit (R3 and C)”; “a voltage supply signal (VCC)”; “a first treated signal (B)” being “a time-delayed representation of said voltage supply”; “a second signal-treating circuit (R1 and R2)”; “a second treated signal (A)” being “a non-delayed representation of said voltage supply signal”; and “a comparing unit (11)...generating an output signal (RS)”, all connected and operating similarly as recited by Applicant. It is noted that the recitation concerning the “processor device” is deemed intended use or mere functional language.

With respect to claims 9-20, clearly the above circuit to Nagano will provide the recited method.

Examiner has fully considered Applicant’s remarks for the above rejection and has not found them to be persuasive. Applicant argues concerning “intended use”, however, line 1 of claim 1, for example, expressly states that the overall “apparatus” is “for effecting a controlled startup of a processor device”. Thus, it is abundantly clear that the “processor device” is not part of the “apparatus” that is claimed. Therefore, it can only be reasonably seen that an operation with regard to the “processor device” would be mere intended use. Further, the above rejection also states that the language concerning the “processor device” is mere “functional language”. Reference is made to M.P.E.P. § 2114 which discussed “functional language”.

Applicant is reminded that since a Final Rejection has already been made in this case, a new Appeal Brief can be filed at any time.
